*A Message from
Rev. Dr. Roger Paavola, President*

“Live Long and Prosper!”

I haven't conducted that many marriages, but, at each one of them I'm compelled to tell the bride and groom to watch what they eat the night before the wedding, make sure they remember everything they're supposed to bring to the wedding, and (above all) don't lock the knees when standing at the ceremony. If a person locks their knees – especially when they're tense – they cut off the circulation in their legs and they faint! On a hot summer's day in Canada, I was convinced one of the attendants was going to faint because he had either had too much celebration the night before, or he failed to heed warnings about the knees. He was a huge hockey player who didn't really want to be there anyway. Maybe he was the one who was worried because some unnamed person had printed the words, “Help me!” on the bottom of the groom's shoes.

Psalm 128 is called “The Marriage Psalm. It's written by King Solomon and still sung at Jewish weddings. It sounds like a toast given by the best man at a wedding reception. It's also the song that was sung by the travelers who came to Jerusalem for the high festivals in Judaism. Whether a person was single, or married, Psalm 128 shows what the ingredients of a joyous and prosperous marriage must be. But as beautiful as it is, Martin Luther called it a Psalm of comfort for those who are “burdened” with the heavy cross of a difficult marriage.

How many family and friends do you know who are literally killing themselves trying to stay happy? The way they go about it practically guarantees they will never find it. The Psalm implies. “Blessed are all who fear the Lord, who walk in His ways...” Being blessed does NOT mean happy! Blessedness is the faithful follower of God to have joy – even if there are troubles and sorrows. Blessedness is well-being, fullness, prosperity and

joy. The Talmud says, "We see life, not as it is, but as we are." It's a matter of perception.

Some people will never be happy! True happiness is an emotional feeling (human) but blessedness comes from God. When we look with eyes of faith, we learn what's really important in life. True blessedness isn't external or elusive. It's a quality that takes root within. Blessedness isn't measured by financial measures or fame. There are no tricks involved in it. You can't grow it yourself. Our joy remains in the fact that we are named by God (blessed) to be His own child, and that as the Creator and Redeemer of the world, His blessing remains on us by His love.

"You will eat the fruit of your labor; blessing and prosperity will be yours." Solomon didn't forget that blessing and prosperity are not synonymous. The fear of the Lord in this and most other places in Scripture is not being afraid, but rather a reverence toward God – humbly bowing in honor of our God. When we reduced blessedness to tangible "things," we're also trying to reduce God into what we can see, touch, or understand. Holding God in awe – unable to understand Him – is the idea of reverence. What this means, of course, is that the fear of God (Fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom) all other human fears become meaningless. We recognize God as being fully holy. God is at the center of everything we do and for every moment we exist. He's our starting point and ending point in understanding ourselves and our lives. "In all things, Christ should have the pre-eminence," Paul wrote to the Colossians. We don't get to make plans, set them in motion, and then have God figure out how He's going to make it work. We begin with God. He's God and we're not. Joy and blessedness are the fruits of work that begins and ends with God. "Walking in His way." We can't create our own system of values, create our own reality, and discard the truth and expect it to come out perfectly. These lousy attempts to do things our way (Sinatra-isms), the most common result is when we scratch our head and wonder, "What went wrong?!"

Psalm 128 doesn't promise a bed of roses...without thorns. Walking in the Lord's way means there'll be times our lives look strangely different than most of the people of the world. Jacques Plante – the Hall of Fame goalie for the Montreal Canadiens remarked at his induction ceremony that being a goalie is the most devastating job a person could ever had. "Can you imagine yourself having a job if every time you made a mistake, a red light went on over your desk and 15,000 people started screaming at you, while the other 15,000 taunted you for being such a dolt?"

That doesn't happen when we're blessed and part of a family. Psalm 128 makes it clear that the human family is the fertile soil of all human relations. When the family disappears, all other social relationships and skills will evaporate as well. Snoops verified this is the case: In Japan, there's a prosperous company that allows a person to "rent-a-family." The frantic pace of the Japanese industrial culture and the stress on achievement from the very earliest age has led to "karoshi", which means "death by over-work." One Japanese company rents a family for the person who wants someone to enthusiastically greet them at the front door after a hard-days work. It's not cheap, but quite popular. The company's founder says his formula for success is based on the fact that all his clients are hungry for warmth and love.

But, can warmth and love be purchased? If it's "feel good" love or give-and-take love - maybe. But the kind of love that makes a family and makes a marriage is a love that is totally giving – unconditional – the best (though imperfect) kind of love Christ has for us. Blessedness is from God. Agape love – the totally giving, unconditional love that Christ has for us is how God intended the family and marriages to work. When some other gratification is sought in marriage or outside of the family, it's an effort that goes beyond the vocation God ordained when He created marriage as the union between a man and a woman. Legal definitions of the marriage estate came about in practically every state in America. But can Christian marriage be reduced to a legal contract? The laws require action and accountability on the part of the parties to a contract. Marriage to God and according to His Word is a blessing where He creates the mystery of two separate persons to become one flesh. No contract can accomplish that.

Martin Luther called marriage "The mask of God," that is the closest evidence we have an understanding of our Triune God – immutable, unconfused, Triune, yet One God – comes when we see a marriage blessed by God. Christ joined Himself to our human family when He humbled Himself to become a Man, dying for His holy Bride – the Holy Christian Church – and preparing a place for Her in His eternal and glorious kingdom.

If you attend a wedding this summer, take a moment to watch the miracle. Watch God take two precious lives and makes them one flesh for the purpose of His blessings: "Your wife will be like a fruitful vine within your house; your sons will be like olive shoots around your table. Thus is a man blessed who fears the Lord. May the Lord bless you from Zion all the days of your life; may you see the prosperity of Jerusalem, and may you see your children's children. Peace be on Israel."

God's Plan Clearly Confirmed

By Keith Logan

I just returned from Haiti March 21st, after a trip to seek God's plans for the upcoming 2021-2022 school year. The primary purpose of this trip was to evaluate the island of LaGonave (see map) and try to discern whether God's will was for us to expand our feeding programs to Christian schools on this very poor, remote island. Before leaving for Haiti, I asked God to make His plans clear by showing us at least three things...

1) Bring to us one qualified candidate that lived on LaGonave and we could hire as a Haitian Feeding Program Director; 2) Bring to us at least eight Christian schools that would qualify and be interested in a feeding program; and 3) Allow us to find a food vendor on the island that would sell us food for prices that were at least close to the prices we pay in Port au Prince. If all three of those items could line up, we felt God was clearly telling us to expand to this new area. Maybe because God knows I can sometimes be a little slow, He made sure it was super clear to us. Instead of providing ONE qualified Feeding Program Director, He brought us TWO excellent and extremely competent candidates, both of which could soon be leaders within the entire Haitian team. Instead of bringing us eight qualified and interested schools, He allowed me to speak at a community meeting where 84 schools gathered with interest to participate in our programs. And instead of finding a food vendor that would sell us food at prices close to those in Port au Prince, He led us to a Christian vendor that said he wanted to partner with us to help the people of LaGonave and his current prices were lower than what we are currently paying in Port au Prince. PRAISE BE TO GOD!

Monal with his children

After a trip like that, our decision was easy. We will be starting 16 new feeding programs at Christian schools in LaGonave this September. We hired both Feeding Program Directors and currently have them visiting each of the 84 schools, praying for God's guidance to lead us to which 16 schools we should feed first. God has proven once again that when you ask for something that aligns with His plans, you will receive His blessings in abundance. (Luke 11:9). All glory goes to God, and we give Him thanks!!

Call to Help SSELK Ministries Impacted by Flooding

The Mid-South District is a ministry partner of the South Sudan Evangelical Lutheran Church in Africa. Recently, the region was devastated by floods, impacting many of the ministry structures that are part of the SSELK. In a letter seeking assistance from LCMS brothers and sisters, Rev. Nathaniel Bol Nyok, SSELK Leader, explains:

"South Sudan Evangelical Lutheran Church is a brand new Lutheran Church body in South Sudan, and as a new church body it has myriads of needs to let her run her mission effectively. Some of her needs were almost met but the ongoing devastating floods in Bor area including Bor town have made a major setback to this Church's progress. The floods have destroyed the physical development which had been put in place during the past 9 years of her establishment. The floods have created so many urgent needs to enable the church adjust to the new situation which the ongoing floods have caused."

Please read the complete letter from Rev. Bol, which explains the situation in detail and includes a list of specific needs for the SSELK. Gifts for the SSELK flood recovery effort can be sent to the Mid-South District (1675 Wynne Road / Cordova, TN 38016), designated for "SSELK Flood Recovery."
